

Method and System for Optimizing Leaf Comparisons from a Tree Search

Abstract of the Disclosure

Aspects for optimizing leaf comparisons from a tree search of data stored in external memory of an embedded processing system are described. The aspects include providing a control structure for leaf data comparisons as a control vector and a match key, and utilizing the control vector to direct types of comparison tests performed with the match key.

Figures